AV Rental Depot offers World's Largest Mobile HD Plasma Display Unit

At a whopping 103" it's the biggest mobile High Definition plasma screen that you can rent!

BOCA RATON, Fla. - February 28, 2008 - AV Rental Depot, a new audiovisual rental division of industry leading Multi Image Group, offers the Panasonic TH-103PF9UK, the 103-inch 1080p full-HD professional plasma display as a short term rental solution. Event and meeting planners nationwide now have options to display content in high definition for events or public display settings.

"The size of this monitor now allows event planners and venues to provide a flat panel option rather than projection for many public viewing applications," says Joe Doyle, account executive of AV Rental Depot. The monitor is attached to a very high-engineered floor stand that allows easy mobility for the 485 pound unit. The stand can literally lift the monitor out of its own travel case. This mobility is what makes the monitor a sought after item in terms of event production," continues Doyle who is a certified meeting planning professional by trade.

Together with the motorized stand the display unit is very appealing and sexy for any event or venue environment. It can be used for many applications such as digital signage, display of broadcast events, camera image magnification at live events, broadcast news studio stage sets, PC presentations and is ideal for promotional displays in high traffic venues such as malls or airports.

"The size of the viewable area really gets people's attention over standard size display monitors. We have the only one physically located in the Southeast U.S. that is available to rent. We are now getting rental orders coming all the way from New Jersey," says James Cullen, general manager of AV Rental Depot." The monitor resides at its company headquarters in Boca Raton, FL.
