A History Lesson in High-Def: Students to view world's largest presidential inauguration with the world's largest mobile HD Plasma Screen

Boca Raton's Spanish River High School history class to view the presidential inauguration up close with AV Rental Depot's 103" HD Plasma monitor!

BOCA RATON, Fla. - January 14, 2009 - AV Rental Depot, the audiovisual rental division of Multi Image Group, an industry leading event production company based in Boca Raton, Florida is providing a day rental of the Panasonic® 103-inch 1080p HD professional plasma display unit so students at Spanish River High school can view live inauguration events in High-Def.

"The size of this monitor is equivalent to four - 50" flat panel monitors, says Joe Doyle, marketing & sales manager at AV Rental Depot. "We are happy to provide the students at Spanish River High School a chance to view history in high definition. The size of this monitor offers superb viewing in group settings. Watching historic moments can have a lasting memory. These students will remember this moment in finer detail."

The monitor is attached to a high-engineered transport case & stand that allows easy mobility for the 485 pound display unit. With the Screenlifter® stand the weight is almost 1500 pounds. The stand can literally lift the monitor out of its own travel case. "This mobility is what makes the monitor a sought after item in terms of group presentations or event production," continues Doyle. Our main clients include other A/V production companies, corporations, event producers and TV studios.

What makes this offering more special for the school?

AV Rental Depot is providing the school the complete plasma the day rental package at no cost along with sound system. Typically, these mobile display units rent for $5,500 per day. The list price to buy the plasma monitor and stand is $85,000.
